

re page 58219 in federal register today - sending out for this information from manufacturers is wasteful and will not result in any sound information. auto mfrs are so busy defending themselves from lawsuits they do not pass on any information on parts or thefts or auto malfunctions truthfully. i think that comments from the public, who has to put up with the malfunctions, theft, parts problems from these ill manufactured cars carry muchmore weight. the consumers who write into this agency are consistently ignored when they have accurate information on what has happened from the purchase of cars. they are far more truthful from the auto mfrs concerned about being sued. i think this proposal is extremely wasteful.
